Editor's Note: Hi everyone! Apologies for the delay in publishing the August Show & Tell pieces which were supposed to go with our September issue – here they are, better late than never! We also have a correction in the October newsletter, the jewelry collection featured below is from Nan Robkin, and our Gingerbread Decorating Party will be held on November 2nd, Saturday. Thanks for your patience and enjoy!

October Program: Fire, Water, Wind and Sun Stones

By Maria Brown | Oct 2, 2019 | 6:30 p.m. | Artworks

I have been perfecting my imitative semi-precious gemstone recipes for years, and in October I will walk you through my best and latest recipes for a beautiful fiery Carnelian, a cool watery Amethyst, a calm Grade 'A' Chrysoprase, and a Baltic Butterscotch Amber. These are wonderful imitative techniques that can be used for beads, cabachons and veneers for boxes and other fun stuff!

All clay and mica powders will be provided. Please bring:

- work surface
- pasta machine/clay roller
- your usual tools
- small cutters if you have them
- a box to bring home your uncured treasures.

Holiday Event: Miniature Gingerbread House Decorating Party

Our returning tradition, we will be decorating tiny miniature polymer clay gingerbread houses with tiny polymer clay candies again.

Place: Artworks

Date: Saturday, November 2nd

Time: 10:00 a.m. – 5:00 p.m.

Food: Potluck!

We have a fridge and kitchen available as well. Bring polymer candies to share. The entire gingerbread house is only about three inches long, so size accordingly. If a candy is one inch long in actual size, make it $\frac{1}{4}$ inch long with polymer clay.
